Letter from the Editor

GLORIA LANE

THIS IS A TIME OF YEAR when many of us promise ourselves we will get healthy, wealthy and wise. The gyms and spas will be filled with individuals still trying to work off that Thanksgiving turkey, followed by the Christmas ham, the champagne of New Year's and the intention to look our best by Valentine's Day. It's a season of good intentions and fervent promises to eat less, work out more and try for transformation of our shortcomings. Striving for improvement is a good thing.

Leaders and members of our nonprofit organizations will launch the new year with hopes of beating last year's goals and accomplishments — maybe this year people will give more time and donate more money: sharing and caring. Businesses will open their hearts and expand their budgets to aid more worthy efforts. These are the people who make a difference in our community and in our lives. The balls, the luncheons, the parties are all icing on the cake for the hard work, long hours and generous spirits that plan these events, support the events and volunteer to work for good causes. For many, these occasions are cause to celebrate, to put on our party attire and dancing shoes to show our support. We hope that the pages of events in this issue will inspire many to join the world of volunteers out to fight sickness and disease, to protect animals and the environment and to support the arts, all in all making our world a better place.

On a personal note, this year Season Magazine will mark its 37th year since I sat up in bed one night and sketched plans for a publication designed to help coordinate the schedules of fundraising events so that there wouldn't be so many conflicts on the same day or night. There are so many wonderful events in Atlanta and our surrounding cities nowadays that it would be impossible to boil them down to one calendar page at a time. Which is fine, because we now have our beautiful website, seasonmagazine.com, to take up the slack and fill in the news of events we think you may want to go to, or volunteer for, or support in any way you choose. Make the choice. I can guarantee it will make you feel good to "do good."

620 Center Drive | Highlands, NC

On Little Bearpen Mountain with a big clear view of Shortoff Mountain and beyond sits this large-living home. Master on main. Garage space for three cars. Separate apartment. Great neighborhood: just a three minute drive to Main Street and moments away from the Highlands Greenway Trail. Priced to sell. There are so few view homes this close to town–especially in this condition at this price.

134 Laurelwood Lane | Highlands, NC

Just a short, fairly level walk to Main Street, Highlands. Brand new listing and a brand new house with a creek in the backyard. Two-car garage, studio space above garage that could be a fourth bedroom, master on main, and fabulous open living space. A family room downstairs, with separate entrance, offers even more guest space. Great price—most new intown properties are priced significantly higher.

HONORARY BALL CHAIRMAN MARTI BLINCOE AND WILLIAM A. BLINCOE, M.D., WITH DAUGHTERS KELLER BATTEY AND CAMY BLINCOE

The sixty-first Piedmont Ball sponsored by The Woman's Auxiliary of Piedmont Hospital will take place Saturday, January 27, 2018, at the Piedmont Driving Club. Designed by Tony Brewer and Company, "Garden of Zen" promises to be unforgettable.

Mrs. Jeffrey D. Shapiro (Karen) is the ball chairman and Mrs. William A. Blincoe (Marti) is honorary ball chairman. Mrs. Robert A. Miller (Dana) is president of The Woman's Auxiliary.

Guests will dance the evening away to Big Swing and the Ballroom Blasters, back by popular demand. The late-night entertainment will come from Atlanta's own very talented Joe Alterman playing jazz in the Alexandria Room.

The Special Gifts Committee has collected fabulous door prizes from The Ritz-Carlton, Atlanta; Saks Fifth Avenue; Moattar Ltd.; Lisa Stein: BB&T and Canoe.

Jim Edenfield and Jeff Shapiro, M.D., are serving as the Men's Committee co-chairmen. Joyce Reifsteck has designed the pin for the gentlemen to wear during the 2018 Piedmont Ball.

Proceeds from the ball will go toward the purchase of advanced airway equipment for the Department of Anesthesiology at Piedmont Atlanta. With medical technology rapidly changing, this will help to ensure that anesthesiologists have access to such technology to provide the safest care to patients. Video laryngoscopy is the future of surgical airway management and Piedmont patients will be able to benefit from these advances.

The Woman's Auxiliary of Piedmont Hospital hopes that you will mark your calendar and plan to be a part of this most wonderful evening. For additional information, please call the Auxiliary Office at 404-605-3273.

BALL CHAIRMAN KAREN SHAPIRO AND JEFFREY D. SHAPIRO, M.D.

AUXILIARY PRESIDENT DANA MILLER AND ROBERT A. MILLER, M.D.

Crystal Ball

"Bienvenidos a Barcelona" transported guests to one of Spain's beloved destinations as the setting for the Arthritis Foundation's 2017 Crystal Ball. The ballroom of The Ritz-Carlton Buckhead provided an elegant backdrop for an evening of Spanish culture and dancing while supporting those who are not able to move so freely with their bodies. Crystal Ball chairs Kerri and Dr. Shervin Oskouei delivered a fabulous evening for guests as they honored Dr. Kenneth and Molly Kress for their loyal support of the

VINTAGE2VOGUE

Celebrating a Legacy Year, The Circle for Children will hold its annual gala, Vintage2Vogue, at Chateau Elan on March 24, 2018. Preceding the gala will be the first Circle for Children Golf Tournament, starting at 10 a.m. at Chateau Elan Golf Course. That evening, a festive cocktail party will precede a seated dinner emblazoned with a mix of Vintage and Vogue features. Lt. Governor Casey Cagle is The Circle for Children's Honorary Chair and will be a guest speaker. Following dinner guest will enjoy fabulous entertainment, dancing and, if you feel lucky, a Casino room to place bets and try their hands at poker or blackjack.

Linda Bagley, an event planner with Your Event Solution, serves as Circle VP and Gala Chair. Bagley assures an evening not to miss.

The Circle for Children's primary beneficiary for the gala is Wellspring Living, a nonprofit organization for housing that serves survivors of young girls ages 12 to 17 who have been abused and taken in as slaves in sex-trafficking.

Recognized as one of the South's premier antiques shows, the 2018 Cathedral Antiques Show kicks off with a special patron preview gala from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Wednesday, January 24, 2018.

This gala party offers attendees first choice of authenticated antiques and fine period furniture, art, accessories and more from the past four centuries.

The Cathedral Antiques Show features a vetted antiques show, speaker series, flower festival and home tour. The show has been a major outreach project of the Episcopal Church Women of the Cathedral of St. Philip for 47 years. This year's show will benefit A.G. Rhodes Health & Rehab, a nonprofit organization operating three skilled nursing homes in Atlanta and Marietta. The chairs are Beverly Gwynn and Dabney Hollis.

St. Simons Island and Sea Island Home Tour

VIEWS, VIEWS, VIEWS. Magnificent traditional and contemporary island homes, all with spectacular ocean, marsh or poolside exposure, will be featured on March 17, 2018, during the 65th Christ Church Frederica Tour of Homes. This year's tour stops feature two recently remodeled beachfront homes on St. Simons — an ultramodern East Beach marsh front home and a waterfront guest cottage in Sea Palms West. On Sea Island, tourists will visit four gorgeous homes along the beach, marsh and in Ocean Forest.

Motherless Daughters Foundation Hosts Fifth-Annual Gala

It was a night of inspiration and surprise during the fifth-annual gala and silent auction of the Motherless Daughters Foundation, an organization that mentors young ladies who are growing up without the support of their natural birth mothers. The semi-formal event took place at the Georgia International Convention Center in College Park.

Four individuals were honored: Jill Scott, singer/songwriter and founder of Blues Babe Foundation, a Philadelphia-based nonprofit that provides a free summer camp for youth; Taffi Dollar, co-pastor, World Changers Church International; Hank Stewart, Emmy Award-winning poet and Gary Davis, founder and executive director, Next Level Boys Academy.

Atlanta First Lady and affordable housing developer Sarah-Elizabeth Reed serves as brand ambassador for Motherless Daughters, and Xernona Clayton, CEO of the Trumpet Awards Foundation, Inc., is honorary mother for Motherless Daughters, which was founded by president/executive director Rassalyn Willis.

During the event, rap artist/actor Clifford "T.I." Harris presented the Special Recognition for Outstanding Support award to his mother, Violeta Morgan, who has been a strong supporter of Motherless Daughters since its inception.

NEW FASHION LINE BECKONS THE WARMTH OF KENTUCKY HORSE COUNTRY

traveler but with the warmth and welcome of a brand securely rooted in the Kentucky horse country, where owner Angela Beck resides with her husband and their five children on their award-winning thoroughbred farm, Gainesway.

Born and raised in Philadelphia, she grew up exploring her mother's art studio along with her four siblings. Angela went on to earn art history and fine arts degrees from the University of Pennsylvania, however, her free spirit took her far beyond the Keystone State. She attended design school in California, lived in Africa and India, sold T-shirts on the beach in Venice, art-directed a film with James Earl Jones, produced TV commercials in New York City and painted teepees in the Mojave Desert. But it was an assignment in the early 1990s to produce horse videos in Kentucky that led her to permanently make the Bluegrass State her home.

In addition to producing those horse videos, she had founded a company handcrafting hair accessories from drapery cords. It was here she perfected the art of marrying excellent design with marketing prowess, ultimately selling those accessories in top department stores. From there and just after the birth of her first child, Beck launched a successful home décor business, Pomegranate. She still holds an interest in that company more than 20 years later.

Seeking to constantly raise the bar and set a positive example for her children, Beck launched the sophisticated yet unfussy BECKEN. With the savvy to perfectly balance being an available, hands-on leader or giving her talented team BECKEN exudes the confidence and polish of a world free rein to be one of the newest, most successful lifestyle fashion brands, Beck today leads all aspects of design, sales, production, distribution, marketing and merchandising for the New York-based BECKEN.

> BECKEN debuted at Saks in Atlanta in August with a fashion show-luncheon to celebrate its successful launch. Key for the brand is the seasonless paddock jacket, alongside > > wearable separates and knits, offering fashion inspired by the equestrian world, yet easy enough for modern everyday lifestyles.

> > "When I conceptualized BECKEN, I wanted to design fashions that were interesting, polished and inviting, but never fussy," Beck said. "It's really exciting to partner with our colleagues at Saks as we make connections to everyday women in Atlanta who, like me, may be dashing from a board meeting to the carpool line to coffee with friends...or even to the stable."

> > Later this fall, BECKEN will open a retail boutique in New York City's West Village featuring not only the brand's wearables but a new line of drink mixers developed exclusively for BECKEN that evokes its Kentucky heritage.

Direct from the Bourbon Trail, drink mixers for women will be packaged in a beautiful frosted bottle and will come complete with an individualized Kentucky back story on the flavor. With warm, rich, natural hardwood floors and vintage bar wear décor, visitors to the boutique will feel more like they're visiting the Bluegrass State rather than stepping off a Manhattan street.

Saks Fifth Avenue Atlanta hosted an intimate, private luncheon and fashion show to celebrate the launch at Saks Phipps of a new lifestyle brand called BECKEN.

The styles take deep inspiration from the horse country of Lexington, Ky., where BECKEN founder Angela Beck lives with her family on their award-winning thoroughbred farm, Gainesway.

A portion of the sales from the luncheon will benefit the Captain Planet Foundation, co-founded by media mogul Ted Turner. Turner's two daughters, Jennie Garlington of Kentucky and Laura Turner Seydel of Atlanta, were on hand to greet guests.

CHILDREN WITH LIGHTED ORBS TO SYMBOLIZE THE "LIGHT OF HOPE" AGAINST CANCER.

THE AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY cast a "light of hope" on the fight against cancer at the 2017 Hope Ball on Saturday, September 9, which was presented by Delta Air Lines at the Delta Flight Museum. It was a night of inspirational people and stories, exciting live auctions, awards and dancing. The ball, with 450-plus attendees, raised $865,000 for the Society's cancer-fighting initiatives. Entertainer Paula Abdul was a guest speaker and described her sister's battle with breast cancer.

Former Delta CEO Richard Anderson, now CEO and president of Amtrak, was presented with the Hope Award, and Dr. Douglas Graham, director of the Aflac Cancer and Blood Disorders Center at Children's Healthcare of Atlanta, received the 2017 Rising Star Award. Money raised at the event goes to fight pediatric cancer.

Wine and Roses 2017 Black & White Ball

Chairs Michael and Allison DeKoning welcomed Presenting Sponsor Comcast to present the 18th- annual 2017 Wine and Roses Gala, benefiting the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. Over $775,000 was raised on April 29 at the Atlanta Athletic Club. The lovely opening reception, sponsored by ARRIS, Assurant and Cox, was followed by dinner with paired wines, both silent and live auctions, and dancing to the Atlanta Beat Band. Throughout the club, fragrant, lush, white floral arrangements by Rooms In Bloom Flowers, carried the black-andwhite theme at every turn. WXIA-TV (11Alive) host Vinnie Politan delighted as emcee, with auctioneer Louis Tonsmeire nspiring bidders.

The Heart of Gold Award recipients were Bob and Kaye Stanzione, as grateful acknowledgement of their efforts for advancing the avenues for a CF cure. The Gift of Time" was the focus of a poignant speech given by Drew Dotson, a young woman living with CF

Yes, the harvest is over. The days are shorter. Ingredients are scarcer. But winter menus are a glorious playground for chefs to release their inner passions and creativity and dazzle diners with dishes that are hearty and satisfying like no other time during the year. Soups, stews, warm winter salads and other cold-weather comfort foods have come roaring back into the mix like that favorite cashmere sweater you forgot was in the closet. Well, it's time to go revisit some old favorites, and this issue's offerings have plenty of reason to hope for a long, lustrous winter.

Season EATINGS

REVIEWS AND PHOTOS BY DAVID DANZIG

IF YOU WEREN'T ABLE TO MAKE IT DOWN to Mercedes-Benz Stadium for an Atlanta Falcons or Atlanta United game you can still take in Arthur Blank's crown jewel of architecture and engineering. Pick a day and come have lunch at Molly B's that overlooks the bowl at Mercedes-Benz Stadium named for his mom, Molly Blank. No tickets? No problem! Molly B's is open for lunch to the public seven days a week on non-event and game days from 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Just park in the Silver deck, go through security and slide into a table. The vast expanse of the dome, the fascinating roof structure, the lights, the glass, the steel and the halo board, a mammoth HDTV that wraps around the bowl — all are simply mesmerizing. And like a table overlooking the ocean or a cascading valley, you really never grow tired of this view. Check out spins on Southern classics such as a BBQ brisket sandwich; buttermilk fried chicken wings served with spicy honey and coleslaw; kale and avocado salad; and the Bahn Mi — pork belly, cucumber, carrots, cilantro, radish, sriracha aioli — and French bread. Plus kick in craft beers, a full wine list and specialty cocktails and you have a party game or no game. mollybsatlanta.com

THE OFFERINGS DOWN AROUND MIDTOWN'S Crescent Avenue have struggled to find a formula that both pleases the neighborhood folk and inspires foodies to venture down into the heart of Midtown. But a new import from the Centurion Restaurant Group just might have figured it out. Bulla (pronounced Boo-ya) means "noise" or "chatter" in Spanish. This new establishment offers wonderfully sharable Barcelona-style cuisine in a lively setting with perhaps the most important thing for stress-free Crescent Avenue dining: plentiful validated parking. The menu is pretty simple. You have your charcuterie, which includes the ambrosia-like Iberian ham and cheeses, small plates and large plates, which easily could feed two or more. Small plates include tequenos made with tetilla cheese, ham croquettes, grilled octopus and Andalusian gazpacho. Larger plates include a rich, velvety seafood paella with Valencia-style rice, braised short ribs and Churrasco Moruno, an explosively flavorful cumin-marinated skirt steak. Of course, as a Spanish-themed restaurant Bulla offers a drink menu more extensive than its food offerings; enjoy three types of made-to-order sangrias, vino blancos and tintos, cervezas and cocktails including "The Bullfighter" made with Bulleit Bourbon and port. Also, be sure to try the weekend brunch with $3 mimosas on Saturday and Sunday. Bulla is easy to like infectious energy, fantastic ethnic cuisine and adult beverages in a district that was begging for a player to come in and take charge.

ONCE A HOT RESTAURANT IN THE EARLY AUGHTS, Lobby at Twelve at the base of the Twelve Hotel and Residences at Atlantic Station had begun to show its age. So Concentrics restaurants, which operates the space, rebooted it into the new Allora, which means "then" in Italian. So what "then?" How about a cool casual Italian spot serving up wood-fired pizzas, fresh pastas and salads and lots of other rustic Italian classics from Executive Chef Chris Maher (formerly of Ritz-Carlton Buckhead, 4th & Swift and ONE Midtown Kitchen). Antipasti such as charred octopus, veal and ricotta meatballs, and entrees such as whole roasted branzino and pasta dishes — from house-made cacio e pepe to a wonderful lemon saffron campanele are all outstanding renditions of Old World Italian standbys, spiced up with some modern flair. The renovated space feels airy yet warm with rich leathers and woods, a chef's table overlooking the open kitchen and one of the most_ 25 - unique pizza ovens you will see. As opposed to tucking it away back in the kitchen, this white hickory-burning oven — complete with ceiling vent — fits snuggly behind the bar. So at Allora you can order your Neapolitan pie and watch it get baked right in front of you as you sip on a nice chianti. I recommend the carbonara made with pancetta, cracked pepper, mozzarella, Pecorino Romano and a gooey farm egg. alloraatl.com

I CAN ONLY IMAGINE what millennials must think when they wander into the all-new Babalu Tapas & Tacos to see projected episodes of "I Love Lucy" up on the wall. Of course, baby boomers will know that Babalu was Ricky Ricardo's signature song, but judging by the multi-generational crowd no one seems to care either way — they are just there for great food and fun. Like the name suggests, Babalu Tapas & Tacos offers Latin-influenced small plates that beg to be shared one-on-one or in a communal setting. Starting with a gorgeous tableside guacamole, choose from tapas such as pan-roasted redfish, braised beef short rib or Creole shrimp and grits. Sandwiches include a Cuban sandwich with citrus braised pulled pork and lamb sliders. And, of course, tacos, tacos, tacos. Soft, perfectly flavored tortillas that envelope pulled pork, beef tenderloin, shrimp and even duck are exquisite. Babalu works on many levels. The 5200-square-foot space, including inside and the restaurant's extensive patio, thrives with positive energy, so kids, college students and even the "I Love Lucy" generation all can find something to love. eatbabalu.com

PRESIDENT TRUMP MIGHT BE TRYING to cool relations with Cuba, but the new Beni's Cubano at the Avenue East Cobb (with another location announced to be opening in downtown Atlanta soon) is on fire. Sharing a wall with Tin Lizzy's Cantina (in fact, when you use the restroom it's in Tin Lizzy's), Beni's mimics a visit to Old Havana (without all the espionage stuff that's going down). Front and center on the menu is the Cuban sandwich with mojo-roasted pork, ham and Swiss cheese with pickles, mustard and garlic aioli; and a seafood criollo, a sautéed shrimp and mahi mahi dish in a Cuban-Creole sauce with sofrito, tomato and olives. There's also vaca frita, a creative new take on an old favorite made with crispy short rib, grilled onions and peppers, mojo and lime; yucca fries or mariquitas (crispy spiced plantain chips) with a choice of two dipping sauces such as garlic aioli, mojo or house-made hot sauce or beef picadillo empanadas stuffed to capacity and served with a choice of two dipping sauces. For dessert, munch on the house-made bread pudding with golden raisins, pecans, whipped cream and dulce de leche paired with a pot of classic Cuban coffee espresso-style with sugar espuma (and get ready for a real caffeine jolt)!

The Frist Gala Kickoff Party

BY LARAWN SCAIFE RHEA

The Frist Gala is one of the most anticipated Spring galas in Nashville. At the 15th-annual Frist Gala Kickoff Party, the highly anticipated details of the event and exhibit were revealed at an al fresco cocktail party at Jennifer and Gus Puryear's historic family home in Woodmont Estates. Every year the theme is centered around a major exhibit at The Frist Museum.

learn from co-chairs Mary Jo Shankle and Dara Russel, the 2018 theme is Rome: City and Empire.

The Frist Center is the exclusive North American venue for the exhibit Rome: City and Empire. It brings to Nashville more than 200 of the British Museum's most engaging and beautiful Roman objects. They tell the dramatic story of the Frist Center. how Rome grew from a cluster of small villages into a mighty empire.

The presentation of this exhibition is a collaboration between the British Museum and the Frist Center for the Visual Arts.

Catering was provided by Kristen Winston, who featured European-themed menu items such as mini Caesar salads, a charcuterie spread, Mediterranean cucumber bites and grilled shrimp with Romesco sauce, while the The more than 50 guests were delighted to servers were wearing laurel wreaths. Floral arrangements were designed by J. Mike Smith and the Roman-themed shortbread cookies, which served as party favors, were created by Southern Shortbread. Cocktail napkins were printed with "carpe diem," "in vino veritas" and other well-known Latin phrases

GOV. BILL HASLAM (2017 JACKSON AWARD RECIPIENT) AND CRISSY HASLAM

Tennessee Governor Bill Haslam and Ophelia and Judge George C. Paine II were honored by The Andrew Jackson Foundation during the beautiful Hermitage Gala at the Omni Hotel. "More than 340 patrons attended the annual fundraising event thanks to the hard work of co-chairs Lisa Manning and Laura Neiwold, and the faithful staff and volunteers who came to support the foundation and honorees and co-chairs," said Howard J. Kittell, president and CEO of the Andrew Jackson Foundation.

Governor Haslam received the Jackson Award, named for the seventh president and presented to those whose leadership and courageous convictions have enhanced the lives of Tennesseans and brought benefit and honor to the body politic.

The Paines received the Lewis R. Donelson Award, for their work in supporting The Hermitage and its preservation efforts.

On the Thursday evening before the gala, Lyn and Steve Cates hosted a reception at their home to honor the gala's generous patrons and benefactors.

al fresco Harvest Dinner

BY LARAWN SCAIFE RHEA

Dining al fresco seems to make everything more romantic and special in the early fall, especially surrounded by beautiful friends and gardens. The Horticultural Society of Middle Tennessee was blessed with close to perfect weather for its annual Fall Harvest Dinner this year.

Nancy Russel and Anne Shephard cochaired this delightfully wonderful event and it was elegant and festive, and all the things Russel and Shephard know how to do well. Long tables stretched across the perfectly manicured grounds and were laid with spectacular tablescapes of seasonal white flowers along with greenery surrounding several sizes of pristine white pumpkins, designed by Darcey Sanders and Patsy Weigel. It was all quite lovely.

The evening started with a champagne tasting provided by David Baker, which included divine passed hors d'oeuvres.

Dinner included a pear salad with gruyere cheese soufflé, beef en croute, gouda mashed potatoes, asparagus, and warm chocolate cake with salted caramel ice cream catered by d.Kates.

PLEASE PASS THE TRADITION:

BREAKFAST AT TIFFANY'S

BY LARAWN SCAIFE RHEA

What a delight it was for me to be in New York during the official opening weekend of the Tiffany & Co. Blue Box Cafe at their flagship store on Fifth Avenue. At last, one can have Breakfast at Tiffany's.

My eyes were sparkling as brightly as a child's on Christmas morning as I looked around the store at the iconic jewels and the huge wreaths adorned with those famous blue boxes. However, when I saw the famous 'Blue Box' in life-size it was simply spectacular.

The phrase "Breakfast at Tiffany's" was made popular in the 1961 film of the same name and has taken on a life of its own. New Yorkers and fans around the world are delighted it is now a reality.

In the film, Holly Colightly had Breakfast at Tiffany's while she stood outside at the windows of Tiffany's on Fifth Avenue and ate her pastry from a brown paper bag. Holly Golightly played by Audrey Hepburn, later goes into Tiffany's with her male friend, played by George Peppard, who wants to buy her a gift. She tells him she will accept it only if it costs less than ten dollars. It was 1961 after all. The sales associate directs the couple to the one item in the entire store that is under ten dollars. It is a sterling silver rotary telephone dialer for $6.95. I have one exactly like it I found years ago at an antique store and I was thrilled to show my husband the specific location of the case where they stood for the scene when it was shown in the film.

Then we were off to the fourth floor to the Blue Box Cafe. The cozy space is dressed in Tiffany blue from the walls to the slip covers on the chairs and the upholstered banquettes. There were miniature Tiffany windows in the walls that featured all things Tiffany on a much smaller scale, but incredibly striking and clever. The creativity came from the direction of Tiffany Chief Artistic Officer Reed Krakoff.

Breakfast and lunch are pre fixe at $29 and $39 respectively. Breakfast choices include Croissant Nutella and honey butter, fruit and berries, or a choice of Truffle Eggs and Avocado Toast, a Buttermilk Belgian Waffle and such. Lunch offers an appetizer of Mushroom Soup and a Charles Lewis Tiffany CLT Club Sandwich a Blue Box Chopped Salad or other selections equally as fabulous and special as only Tiffany & Co. can do. Tea service for $49 is gloriously elegant, with a selection of Bellocq teas and precious little pastries including Tiffany Eggs Nest and The Blue Box Petits Fours and my favorite, Sweet and Savory Scones with Winter fruit preserves, and Glittery Clotted Cream. Yes, glittery clotted cream. The finger sandwiches include Smoked Salmon Cream Cheese, Cucumber Goat Cheese, Herbed Chicken Salad and several vegan options.

The Tiffany tradition of fabulous continues, as the glittery clotted cream dances on one's tongue, visions of diamonds are dancing in this one's head.

North Carolina's capital city is one that's largely Another crowd magnet is the Downtown Raleigh become known for its universities, technology, and research, including with a recent study finding trucks from across the state. You'll appreciate the Raleigh to be among the nation's top 10 cities easy access to the food truck rodeo, movie screenings of emerging technology hubs. But beyond its and much of what downtown has to offer from a stay

Research Triangle Park for which it's recognized, North Carolina's capital has more to offer, making it more of a destination to experience and explore.

From the culinary offerings to the charming sights and sounds, Raleigh is living up to its billing as one of the top 12 destinations for 2017. That's according to a list compiled by Forbes Travel Guide, with other getaways to include Bogota, Santa Barbara, Washington, D.C., and Bali.

You'll find no shortage of sights and sounds in the area near the Raleigh Marriott City Center in downtown Raleigh Each Friday and Saturday night, the hotel hosts live entertainment. A summer movie series brings the movies outdoors on a giant inflatable screen in the heart of downtown.

Food Truck Rodeo that features more than 50 food at the 400-room Raleigh Marriott City Center, which opened in 2008 and is connected to the Raleigh Convention Center.

Not only can you rock away with the live entertainment at the hotel's Rye Bar and Southern Kitchen, you can take in traditional Southern comfort food from locally sourced ingredients — for breakfast, lunch and dinner. The restaurant, led by chef Michael Rigot, hosts a popular weekly special, Meat and Three, with a different entrée featured each day to pair with three sides and a drink. From the breakfast menu, the Coastal Omelette with rock shrimp, spinach, and tomato as well as the Mother-Daughter Special (and its freshly made pimento cheese) are sure to satisfy the palate.

Walk off your meals with stops to the North Carolina Museum of History, which showcases North Carolina's past and people, including military history, sports figures and more. The North Carolina Museum of Natural Sciences is North Carolina's oldest established museum and the largest museum of its kind in the Southeast. From the summer to early fall, it featured an engaging special exhibit, "Race: Are We So Different." The national traveling exhibition is the first to tell the stories of race from the biological, cultural and historical points of view.

More family activities await you and the little ones at Marbles Kids Museum. The hands-on interactive museum offers plenty of play-based learning for children 10 and under. It was a treat to watch my daughter Braxton get in some hoops in the basketball space, shop for groceries in the hands-on makeshift grocery area and deliver a newscast in the replica of a local television station. Also, your trip to Marbles isn't complete until you take in a 3D screening at the IMAX Theatre at Marbles. The delightful "Deep Sea 3D" allows you to feel as if you're right there swimming with some of the planet's most unique, dangerous and colorful creatures.

Whether you want to dance along to the street's rhythms, soak up some history or take in some family fun, you'll find no issue getting it all in here in the "City of Oaks."

WHENEVER YOU READ ABOUT THE RMS TITANIC -

the fabled "floating palace" that sunk on its maiden voyage in April of 1912 — gilded glamour and high fashion are always part of the intrigue. During its "dressing hour," when first-class passengers dressed for dinner following white-tie protocol, many 'Lucile' gowns — gingerly unpacked by ladies' maids from grand steamer trunks — were worn by patrons unaware the celebrated designer, sailing incognito, was aboard. British couturiere Lucile, Lady Duff Gordon, traveling to expand her business in America, was on the Titanic with her husband Sir Cosmo Duff Gordon and her maid. (All three were saved when disaster struck, but there was a whiff of scandal surrounding the circumstances!)

Lucile was internationally famous for her femme-femme evening clothes and bridalwear made of gossamer layers of silk with delicate beadwork (some say she was the first to design a "corsetless" gown); she was also known for her elegant 'naughty but nice' lingerie — a bridal trousseau darling of the rich and royal. Indeed, the innovative designer was favored by fashionable brides around the world: stars of stage and screen, fiancées of business tycoons, daughters of the nobility (too many to name here!) One of Lucile's beautiful young brides was a fellow Titanic passenger — recently married to the older and very wealthy John Jacob Astor IV; Madeleine and her unborn child made it to safety, he did not.

Lucile's élan even spilled over into the popular "Downton Abbey" television series 100 years later! There's a scene in season three — soon before Lady Edith Crawley's ill-fated wedding — when Cora, Lady Grantham (quite the fashionista), informs Violet, the Dowager Countess, that the bride would, of course, be wearing 'Lucile.'

Mary Farquharson Marvin — the daughter of another high-society couturiere — and her husband were also first-class passengers on the Titanic, returning to New York from their European honeymoon. Mary's mother was half of the Farquharson & Wheelock design team — two Scottish sisters, with fashion ateliers in Washington, D.C., and New York City. Naturally, they designed Mary's stylish wedding gown and, because of their fame, she appeared in Vogue wearing the bridal confection. (A decade later, Farquharson & Wheelock created the lace and silk tabard-style gown for the wedding of Biltmore heiress Cornelia Vanderbilt's wedding in Asheville, N.C.)

The family of Mary's husband, Daniel Warner Marvin, were pioneers in the motion picture production business and, although their wedding in early 1912 was not filmed, the ceremony was restaged for the camera a few months later, making international news. The London Daily Mirror reported it as the very first wedding to be "cinematographed." Sadly, like many men on the sinking Titanic, Mary's husband saw his young wife safely aboard a lifeboat, then stayed behind and went down with the magnificent ship.

Stories of Titanic fashion continue next issue! Plus, Biltmore in Asheville hosts the first large-scale exhibition of costumes from the Oscar-winning film "Titanic," opening in early 2018. Fashion historian Cornelia Powell will lead "limited-edition" tours of the exhibit. For more info: Cornelia Powell.com

FIVE FOOLPROOF TIPS TO REACH YOUR FITNESS GOALS THIS YEAR

NEW YEAR, NEW RESOLUTION, RIGHT? At least until February when those resolutions notoriously slip away. If 2018 is your year to achieve those fitness goals, and stick with them, I'm behind you. The key to sticking to a resolution? Routine and reason are the keys, and below are five tips you can use to implement a routine within reason to ensure a more fit future you!

1. Think SMART

For those that may not know, SMART is an acronym used to help set achievable goals. Specific, Measurable, Achievable, Realistic, Time-Bound. For example, the goal "to lose weight" is too vague and doesn't set you up for success. A SMART goal instead would be: "I would like to lose 10 pounds by July 1 by exercising for 60 minutes, five days a week and following a diet plan."

2. Community is key

A fitness community is the ideal source of accountability. Sweating it out together and being able to relate to one another is key to sticking to a routine. It also helps you to know you're not alone throughout the fitness process. For those without gym memberships, Studio SWEAT onDemand is a great solution. It's an online fitness solution that allows you to work out alongside real people at my studio in San Diego, Calif. Award-winning body sculpting classes include Spinning®, TRX®, HIIT, Yoga, Pilates and more, led by a team of certified trainers. Plus, you'll be able to chat with other "Komrades," so you'll never be alone in the process.

3. Get more sleep

I promise you that if you adhere to a strict routine where you get at least seven hours of sleep every night your body will love the consistency and respond accordingly. An added bonus you know I'm all about is that getting enough hours of sleep helps your muscles recover from the previous day's workout. Woot woot! So, go to bed and wake up at the same time, even on weekends and enjoy the benefits that go along with it!

Whether at night before you go to bed, or when you first wake up in the morning take a few minutes and think about your goals. Fitness goals, career goals, other personal goals. Reflect and think about how you can go about achieving those goals today.

Fitness results aren't instantaneous. Stick it out, remain positive, keep pushing and remember that the cliche' "Attitude is everything" is true. I believe in you.

BOATERS GET IN ON ALL THE FUN FOR THE ECLIPSE

LOOKING FOR A COOL WEEKEND GETAWAY FROM ATLANTA? There's a surprise jewel, less than three hours north - Capital City Lake Murray Country.

We were invited by the Capital City Lake Murray Tourism group to come to view the eclipse from Lake Murray, one of the primo spots in America along the Path of Totality. What we experienced was more than just an incredible eclipse. We stayed and experienced what they affectionately call The Jewel of South Carolina.

At one time, Lake Murray was the largest manmade lake in the United States but her beauty is why it's referred to as "The Jewel of South Carolina." This jewel was the perfect place to view the celestial event of our lifetime.

The day was also perfect. Not a cloud in the sky. Sean Deese, owner of Mountain Top Marine in Lexington, graciously picked us up at the Marina. Sean supplied us with a spacious pontoon boat from his huge selection of boats and we cruised the lake snacking on our "eclipse" goodies...Sun Chips, Milky Ways, Moon Pies, and Oreo cookies made to show the various stages of the eclipse. Many boats as well as thousands of eclipse viewers gathered at the dam and all around Lake Murray partying and waiting to experience this once-in-a-lifetime event.

PURPLE MARTINS

Another phenomenon we felt blessed to witness also took place on Lake Murray, on the site of North America's first officially designated Purple Martin sanctuary. Tens of thousands (maybe hundreds) of purple martins flew in to roost on Bomb Island, a small-uninhabited island in the middle of the lake. It truly is a sight to behold and you don't have to be a bird nerd to enjoy this spectacular natural phenomenon. I'm told it takes place every July and August.

TO THE NEWBERRY OPERA HOUSE PLEASE

Our adventure continued as we spent an afternoon exploring the charming historic town of Newberry. Once a sleepy little Southern town, Newberry has a downtown area is now bustling with lovely antique shops, boutiques, restaurants and, of course, beautifully preserved historic buildings, most of which are listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

One of those so listed and the focal point of the town is the Newberry Opera House. This French Gothic beauty was built in 1888. It soon became the entertainment center of the Midlands with theatrical troupes, burlesque acts, musical groups and members of the famous Barrymore family.

The Opera House has now become nationally and internationally known and respected. So much so that other performing art centers are watching how a small town of around 10,000 can bring entertainment and educational programs that include the likes of Sawyer Brown, The Coasters, The Marshall Tucker Band, Arlo Guthrie and The Atlanta Pops. (An interesting tidbit is that a Japanese businessman flew over this year just to see the Atlanta Pops Orchestra

Entertainers love performing there and leave their signature on an autograph wall. The Drifters, Glen Campbell, Jack Klugman and Tony Randall and hundreds of other famous celebrities have penned their signature. MORE ▶

PENELOPE'S SEAT -A REAL GHOST STORY

As is the case with many historic buildings, the Opera House apparently has a ghost — named Penelope. The story is told that young Penelope fell in love with a traveling vaudevillian, "The Professor." They exchanged messages to each other in a book at the local bookstore and their love bloomed. Excited to see the world and young and in love, Penelope decided to run away with him. In his last note he tells her to wait for him at her seat in the balcony after his last performance. Penelope snuck out of her parent's house and waited. As time went by she realized that he is not coming. She died soon after but, even today, there are those who claim to have seen the ghost of Penelope waiting for her beloved at Balcony Section A Seat 111. The seat can always be found turned down every performance no matter how many times it is placed back up.

FIGARO, FIGARO!

Tell me I didn't have one of the best meals ever in that charming little town. Just across the street from Newberry Opera House is an outstanding restaurant named Figaro! Chef John went off menu and prepared a five-course meal for us pared with wines for each course. It was over-the-top delicious.

Figaro-the Dining Room used to be an old bank. However, rather than money, its vault now houses a fabulous wine selection.

From the time you walk into this charming restaurant you're greeted pleasantly and the well-trained wait staff serving at just the right pace. Kudos to Chef John whose approach to fresh foods is to get the best possible products to serve his customer — from eggs to grain from herbs to meat/seafood.

HAVE A SODA – AT SODA CITY

Every Saturday the vibe of downtown Columbia is changed as four city blocks in town center are closed off. Artisans and other vendors come together to bring an upscale carnival/ park-type atmosphere for what they call Soda City Market. You can have breakfast or lunch at one of the dozens of food vendors as numerous corner musicians entertain. Dog friendly!

While downtown, meander over to Bourbon, a happenin' whiskey bar and Cajun-Creole restaurant. The establishment has more than 350 whiskeys, most of which are bourbon, rye or Tennessee whiskey. Each concoction comes with a unique name. I'm not usually a bourbon drinker, but being from Atlanta I had to order the "Frankly, My Dear," made with Maker's Mark, vanilla syrup, black walnut bitters and flamed orange. Yes, it was delicious. When you find your special drink make sure you get an order of Jalapeno hush puppies. They go great with everything. I'd love to have them send me an order right now! MORE ▶

LITTLE MOUNTAIN ANTIQUE MALL - ANOTHER NUGGET IN THE JEWEL

I admit it — I'm partial to small towns and quaint stores. So our host, Miriam Atria, arranged that our last experience to the Lake Murray area be to Little Mountain Antique Mall and Café. I don't have enough space to tell you how special it was, but suffice it to say I knew I was going to love it the minute we drove up.

A number of local items such as May's Vinaigrette and other specialty salsas and jellies were featured and sampled as you walk in, but turn the corner and you're immediately surrounded with beautiful antique furniture, vintage guilts, china, silver and other collectable nuggets.

Doug and Karen Quinn came to Little Mountain with nothing but a dog and very little money. No job, no relatives. They are now the owners of this fabulous antique store with more than 50 dealers displaying their merchandise throughout about 15,000 square feet.

Shop and Eat. I was blown away with the little café on the lower level (where they also have some select vintage cars and instruments for sale). It is almost worth the drive from Atlanta just to have their "Southern PB&J" and I don't mean peanut butter and jelly. That first bite of this grilled pimiento cheese, bacon and raspberryjalapeño jelly sandwich on sourdough bread and you are hooked. Jim opted for the Quiche Lorraine — very tasty and cooked to perfection. For dessert, I opted for yummy cheesecake with blueberries but they have a variety of homemade goodies.

So what was going to be a short visit to Little Mountain Antiques on our way home turned out to be a half-day of browsing, eating and yes, making a purchase. Even half-day wasn't long

OCEAN VIEW POOL VILLA

BY KATIE McELVEEN

IS THERE ANYTHING BETTER than receiving a beautiful gift? That's how I felt as I opened the door leading into my cottage at Banyan Tree Cabo Marques in Acapulco and got my first look at the view — the endless Pacific, lush greenery tumbling across rocky cliffs and a sapphire-hued sky. All it needed was a bow.

Actually, cottage is an understatement. With its shady patio, deep-blue infinity pool and sunny deck surrounding a huge, window-encased room, it was more of a compound than a cottage. And it was all mine.

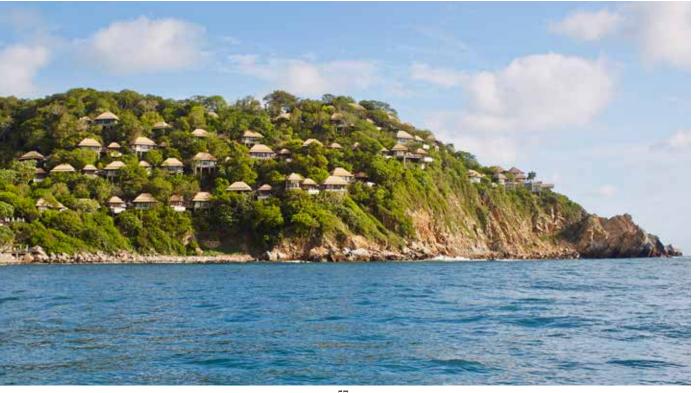

Inside that room, I was greeted by dark wood, cool stone and, in the bathroom, a massive soaking tub set next to a floor-to-ceiling window overlooking the endless Pacific. There were snacks, too, oodles of them — cheese, raw veggies, wine — all things I adored. Was the room service staff prescient? At times it seemed so, but in this case, they'd referred to the short questionnaire I'd completed a few days before I'd left. It had requested my preferences on everything from aromatherapy and snacks to pillows, drinks and spa treatments. Hungry and a bit jet lagged, I took a few moments to uncork the wine, crunch a few crackers and slip into the pool before getting ready for dinner.

Dinner took place at Saffron, the resort's signature Thai restaurant, where we started with lychee martinis and worked our way through satays, tom kha gai — Thailand's famed kaffir-lime-scented coconut soup — grilled fish in a sweet, fiery sauce and tamarind sorbet. The setting — we sat perched on an outdoor dining patio with a view of the sunset — was equally dramatic.

Beyond serving authentic Thai cuisine, Banyan Tree's Thai heritage — the company opened its first resort in Phuket more than 30 years ago — is evident throughout the resort. Rooms and public areas are Asian-inflected with dark wood and pagoda-style rooflines; indoor and outdoor spaces merge seamlessly through glass walls, open staircases and covered boardwalks suspended over gardens. One pathway leads to a pretty outdoor restaurant fronted by an infinity pool that, at sunset, reflects the drama like a mirror; another to a set of stairs that end at a small pebbled beach. If I thought the view was a gift, the spa was a week of birthdays. Unlike many resort hotels, Banyan Tree's spa is not a Euro-style retreat where you can spend hours luxuriating in communal salt grottos, steam cabins, and whirlpools. Instead, I was led by my Thai-trained therapist to one of seven two-level suites outfitted with shower facilities, a treatment area and an in-ground tub sub for traditional massage rooms. After a ritual foot cleansing, my therapist went to work on my face, pampering my airplane-dried skin with a soothing array of lotions and potions. Once my facial was complete, she used her hands, elbows and even feet to stretch and soothe my tired muscles. MORF ▶

An intoxicating blend of oils — ginger, ylang-ylang and black pepper — enveloped the space in fragrance and sent me directly to an alternative universe. The treatment ended with 30 minutes of quiet time for me to sip tea, nibble passion fruit and enjoy the quiet buzz of relaxation — alone and without distraction. Those needing more privacy can book the Spa Serenity Villa, as Justin Bieber did in early 2017. It comes with unlimited spa treatments, taken en suite or on the deck.

Though rooted in Thai culture, Banyan Tree Cabo Marques celebrates its location in Pacific Mexico as well. During an afternoon cooking class, we learned regional secrets for everything from guacamole — hold the tomato — to forming our own tortillas — harder than it looks — and charring vegetables for salsa. We even learned that the secret ingredients in Acapulco's unique sweet-sour ceviche are, oddly, ketchup and Fanta orange soda.

But that was just for novices. On their own, the resort's skilled chefs combined local ingredients, traditional Mexican tastes and sophisticated technique to create dishes such as blackened tuna with huauzontle (a local grain) lemon and corn ashes, a delicious byproduct of tortilla making. We also feasted on salmon with cucumber "tagliatelle" and pine nuts, coconut soup with roasted shrimp and a Mexican-style tiramisu scented with orange and chocolate. At lunch, there was spicy fish chowder, lovely salads and more of that addictive guacamole. We drank surprisingly complex Mexican wines and, at an elegant tasting of Mexican spirits, sipped tequilas and mezcals straight with oranges, lemons and various salts, including one enriched with roasted agave worm.

Far from gross, it was filled was a smoky umami that suited the strong liquor.

Though Acapulco is long past its 20th-century heyday, it's worth tearing yourself away from the resort for a day to haggle for brightly painted wooden bowls and gauzy dresses in the Byzantine mercados, stroll the grounds of the stunning botanical garden and watch the surfers at Playa Bonfil with a cool chilate, the creamy local drink made from rice. Then it's back to Banyan Tree Cabo Marques for more luxuriating and enjoying the view.

HAMMOCK BEACH ON FLORIDA'S PALM COAST

Located in the under-the-radar Palm Coast (south of Jacksonville and north of Daytona), Hammock Beach seems quite content existing as an undiscovered oasis for families along northeast Florida's shoreline. The all-suite resort acts like a mini-beachside metropolis featuring seven dining outlets, two championship golf courses, a 10,000-square-foot spa and an impressive sixpoint-five-acre pool complex that includes several pools (indoor and outdoor), a hybrid beach/pool, a lazy river and a twisting waterslide. Of course all with full food and beverage service.

And many elements of the resort are recently upgraded. The redesigned lobby feels like a stately, yet contemporary mansion; the newly opened Sushi Bar restaurant serves up, among other things, the colossal lobster tempura roll. And one of the resort's towers that includes all onebedroom suites just got refreshed. MORE ▶

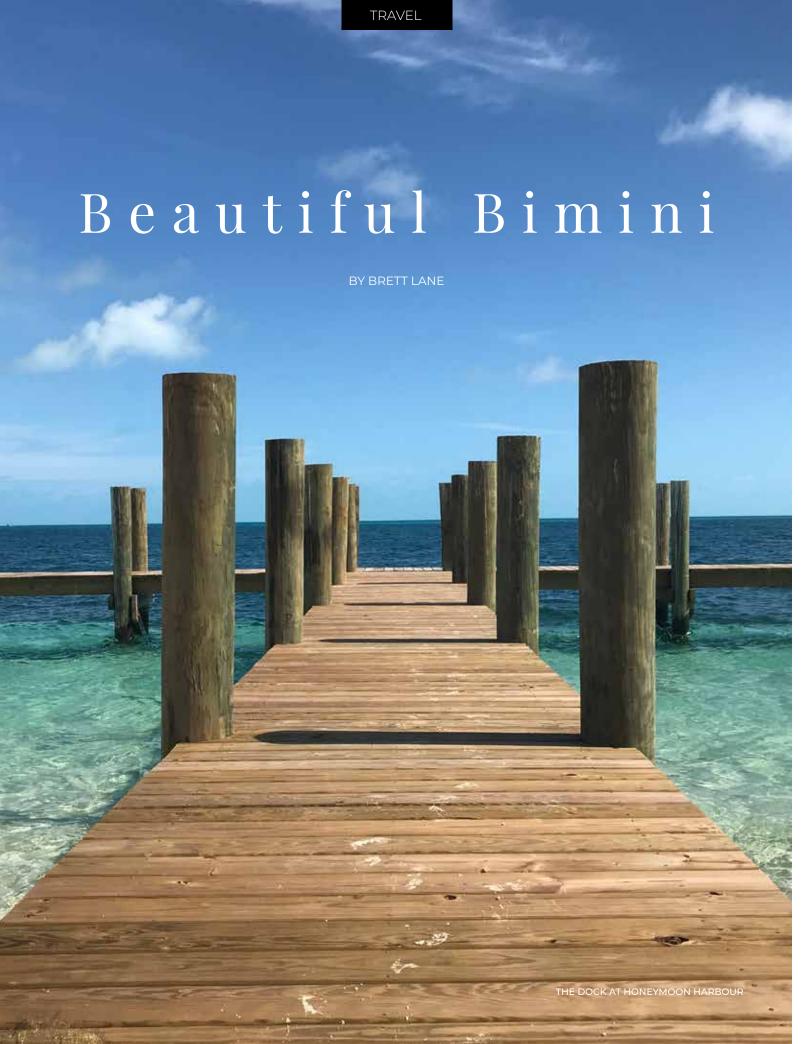

SUNSET AND MOONRISE OVER HAMMOCK BEACH

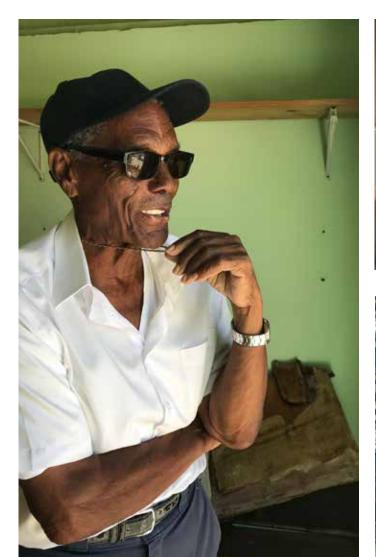

But perhaps the biggest news was the recent reopening of the fabled Jack Nicklaus signature Ocean Course, known for its six ocean holes called "The Bear Claw." After Hurricane Matthew's tidal surge in 2016, with strong winds damaging it, the redesign now includes re-grassed fairways, greens and rough with the salt-tolerant Platinum Paspalum, as well as the reconstruction of each tee box, bunker and green complex. The Ocean course joins the waterfalls, babbling brooks and famous island green of the Tom Watson-designed Conservatory Course as Hammock Beach's second championship course.

Besides the abundance of amenities, what separates Hammock Beach from just about every other resort in Florida are the accommodations; every room is a full-fledged suite — ranging from one-to-three bedroom suites and villas coming in a spacious 2,350 square feet. Hammock Beach offers families space to breathe, relax and even cook. And after a long day of building sand castles, riding beach bikes, playing golf or floating in the lazy river, isn't coming back to a home away from home what it's all about?

If there was any question about whether the Caribbean is thriving, look no further than Bimini in the Bahamas. Flying in on a seaplane from Ft. Lauderdale, I see the eight-point-eight-milelong island full of lush greenery as I descend, surrounded by the bluest, clearest water I've ever laid eyes on. As the plane lands right on the water at Resorts World Bimini, and I climb out into the fresh air, the humidity hits me instantly. I begin to perspire, but the breeze cools me off quickly as I take a deep breath of the fresh air. I smile. I have arrived.

I immediately notice the smiles on the faces of everyone I meet. It's a pleasure getting checked into my room, which has the perfect view, and each staff member I pass says "Hello" and greets me with a warm smile. I'm liking this place already. Settling into my spacious room, I immediately step outside my balcony to eagerly take in a few more breaths of fresh air; it's addictive. My room is super comfy with two queen beds (and let's be honest, yes, I used them both!) a sitting area and, get this; motion lights!

Downstairs, the restaurant offers several dining options as well as the boutique casino. Our first night we dined at Sushi Bar, which seems pretty self-explanatory. However, the sushi boat that was prepared for us blew me away by the sheer size of it, but the selection is curated by "Top Chef" winner Hung Huynh. Everything is freshly prepared and certain rolls have been given a Bimini twist like the Son of a Beach Roll. Personally, I like Sashimi so I ordered Tuna, Salmon and Yellow Tail and it did not disappoint.

Fortunately, I'm awakened by the iced coffee I grab before heading out on day two, and I'm on my way to exploring this beautiful island. Being such a small island, it's easy to get around by bicycle. MORE

BIKING AROUND BIMINI

With the sun on my back and the breeze on my face, it's a beautiful ride that really reveals the beauty of the island and the people who live here.

I stop at Ansil Saunders' Boat Shop and listen to his stories of being the Guinness Book World Record holder for the largest Bone Fish ever caught by line. As he speaks I hear the water lapping against the shore and the steady click, click, click, as a neighbor tosses conch shells behind him into a large pile after redeeming the sweet meat inside. He's well-read, gregarious, and has a twinkle in his eye as he recalls taking Martin Luther King Jr. out to the mangroves to write his Union Workers Speech and eulogy. As I listen, I try to imagine what that must have been like, but I come up short. What an amazing life he has lived. Giving him a hug as I leave, my heart feels full.

Lunch and an ice-cold beer are in order. Stuarts Conch Stand boasts the freshest Conch Salad available and I'm eager to try it. The local beer, Kalik, goes down smoothly and I question its  $_{ ext{-}66}$  -

FRESH CONCH SALAD FROM STUARTS CONCH STAND

LOCAL AND REFRESHING KALIK REED

name. I'm told that it's named after the sound cows hooves make as they walk...kalik, kalik, kalik. As I'm enjoying my Kalik, I notice two men down on the dock, preparing the freshly caught conch, separating the "sludge" that is used for bait, and leaving only the clean conch meat. As Fabrice gets to work chopping up the fresh conch, onion, tomato, garlic salt and special seasonings, I get nervous. I'm used to ceviche, where the raw meat is marinated in lime juices for hours, but this is fresh. This is going to be a new experience, I know. Squeezing the fresh limes on top and adding a tiny bit of their homemade hot sauce, I give it a stir and take a bite. My mouth explodes with the flavors of the garlic and lime, mixed with the onion and the surprisingly delicate taste of the conch. I'm hooked. By the time I leave, I will have had conch salad for several of my meals. It's really that good.

Riding back to the hotel, I'm excited as I know I have an appointment at Serenity spa coming up. I get lucky as Kimberly, my massage therapist, nerds out with me as we discuss fascia, stretching and so much more as I am pampered beyond my dreams. Afterwards, I spend some time in the steam room, feeling Bimini bliss. This is the life.

Taking my time after my massage to relax, visit the pool and check up on emails, I feel fantastic. I leisurely get ready for dinner at Luna Beach to dine by the ocean. The sun is just setting as I arrive and it creates the perfect backdrop for a wonderful evening of food, friends and fun conversation. The surf and turf with asparagus are cooked to perfection and the beach-waves soundtrack is hypnotic. I'm not a big fan of sugary desserts, so a few fresh berries for a sweet after-dinner treat were just right. However, if you do love desserts, they have some awesome- looking ones! I return to my temporary home with a smile on my face as my eyes close on another beautiful day.

I wake to the sound of rain in the middle of the night. It surprises me, as it rarely rains here. We are going snorkeling at the S.S. Sapona shipwreck today and I don't want it to be canceled. I return to slumber and awake hours later to sunny skies and plans unchanged. Perfect.

I'm eager to get on the boat. I love a good boat ride, especially when it picks up speed and the wind whips my hair around. We travel for what seems like forever, but who's counting because I have the sun, the sea and something to sip as I sing along in my head to the music playing. It's so gorgeous out and we navigate through a million different shades of blue water. I literally catch my breath as we begin to slow down and the S.S. Sapona comes into view. It's beaten and battered and rusty and old, but still beautiful. Gearing up and jumping in, the cold water shocks my system for a moment and I swim toward the ship, seeing all kinds of colorful fish along the outside of the hull. I even venture inside the shipwreck briefly, but the rain from earlier created some rough waves; so for my own safety, I made my way back to the outside, marveling at nature's beauty. I feel like the luckiest girl in the world.

Once we have our fill of snorkeling, we head to Honeymoon Harbour to feed the stingrays. I had no idea how big they got, and they know what we're here to do, because they surround me, bump into me and almost knock me down. They're hungry! I feed them bits of squid and they eat immediately, then search for more. I think they would have eaten all afternoon but there's only so much squid you can bring with you. We sit on the dock and eat lunch, watching the stingrays swim around the clear water.

Cruising back home, my thoughts wander and I'm so relaxed. There's really something magical here. My time is drawing to a close as the sun sets and I am filled with memories that will last a lifetime.

Happy Days in Helen

BY SHANDRA HILL SMITH PHOTOGRAPHY BY DOUG SMITH PHOTOGRAPHY

It wouldn't be uncommon to spot license plates from Florida or any other state for that matter in Georgia's third mostvisited city. But this particular September weekend, every other license plate dotting Helen was from the Sunshine State, thanks to Hurricane Irma that forced residents from their homes and cities to safer grounds.

Despite its small size — only two-point-one square miles, and a population of just over 400 — Alpine Helen, a re-creation of a Bavarian Alpine Village, is used to the crowds that are drawn In by the city's charm, quaint shops and setting, within the heart of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

The city's biggest celebration, its annual Oktoberfest — this year's 47th taking place from early September to the end of October — lines the streets with parade onlookers. It's exciting to take in the floats, marching bands and German music and dancing.

of the Cabbage Patch doll. The annual fall fest at BabyLand is packed with music, play and, of course, the excitement that comes from seeing the delivery of the newest member of the Cabbage Patch family, along with viewing thousands of Cabbage Patch Kids, including some of the original dolls, today with price tags in the thousands! On a personal note, it was special to see my daughter first up to hold the newborn

For more of an activity to enjoy year-round, you can always Need a quick treat to hold you over? You'll find something for your sweet tooth and more at Hofers Bakery and Café, an authentic German café where you may try out a variety of fresh baked goods and meals. (You might want to get in those holiday orders.) Did someone say boiled peanuts? For peanut lovers (brittle lovers included), stop by Fred's Famous Peanuts. Depending on the season, you may even get to sample the cider or slushies at this roadside stand.

At Unicoi State Park and Adventure Lodge, a popular spot for children for its unique barrel cabins, you're in for a cozy stay where you, your family and/or friends can enjoy the solitude of nature. If you so choose, you never have to leave the property for any of your meals, as Unicoi provides breakfast, lunch and dinner. In addition to dozens of cabins, Unicoi has an on-site lodge with 100 rooms (WiFi included) and a conference center.

From Unicoi, you're minutes away from Anna Ruby Falls Trail - where you may get in a hike, taking in the calming twin waterfalls — that proves to be kid-friendly and pet-friendly.

Friendly faces, happy times — that's what you'll find when spending time in Alpine Helen. And while the city is a yearround beauty, you might especially appreciate its bright lights and glow during the winter season.

S C E N T S OF THE SEASON

MARC JACOBS DAISY

Charmingly simple with a signature quality, Marc Jacobs Daisy is irresistibly feminine. The top of the fragrance is infused with succulent wild berries and soft white violets. At the heart, velvety jasmine warms to a dreamy drydown of sensual sandalwood, for a romantic, lingering finish. Daisy Marc Jacobs is the captivating creation of Master Perfumer Alberto Morillas.

HUGO BOSS

BOSS BOTTLED TONIC A fresh masculine twist on the classic fragrance, new Boss Bottled Tonic is the distillation of the fresh moment of clarity the man of today needs to regain composure, sharpen, reflect and go again. The first ever fresh fragrance from the iconic Boss Bottled portfolio, Boss Bottled Tonic reveals a new facet of modern masculinity inviting theman of today to take a moment to refocus on his path to success. An inherently masculine fresh fragrance, Boss Bottled Tonic is an elegant composition of sophisticated citruses and rich woody notes to bring a lighter and refreshing dimension to the classic fragrance.

MARC JACOBS DECADENCE

Eau de Parfum is a sensual, luxurious, woody fragrance that embodies the spirit of irreverent glamour. Housed in a decadently feminine bottle inspired by an iconic handbag shape, the fragrance opens with sultry top notes of Italian plum, iris lower and saffron.

TIFFANY & CO. EAU de PARFUM SPRAY

Tiffany expresses the luxury, glamour and romance of New York in a bold new fragrance, Eau de Parfum Spray. Designed around the noble iris, Tiffany & Co. is a sparkling floral musk scent. The crystal bottle, gleaming with a hint of blue juice, recalls the iconic Tiffany Lucida® and Tiffany Yellow Diamond cuts. Like all of the jeweler's creations, Tiffany & Co. Eau de Parfum is presented in the signature Tiffany Blue Box®.

CHLOÉ ABSOLU de PARFUM LIMITED EDITION

Launched by the design house in 1975, Chloé Absolu de Parfum Limited Edition is classified as a flowery fragrance: a fresh and feminine fragrance suited to a free spirit with an utterly innate sense of chic. The scent takes the classic rose, honeysuckle, jasmine and orange flowers and ingeniously translates this into a vibrant perfume, intimate and sensual.
